Now, I am eager to further develop my skills in the digital realm to enhance healthcare delivery and patient experiences.

Throughout my career in nursing, I have been deeply committed to providing high-quality care to patients during critical moments. Working in the operating room has taught me the importance of precision, adaptability, and effective communication within interdisciplinary teams. My recent training in team management has equipped me with valuable leadership skills that I am eager to apply in new and innovative ways.

I am particularly drawn to the ManagiDiTH program because it offers a unique opportunity to bridge my clinical expertise with digital technologies. I am excited about the prospect of learning how to leverage data analytics, telemedicine, and other digital tools to optimize patient care delivery, streamline processes, and improve overall healthcare outcomes.
